Advertising Rates.

Equitable Advertising Rates based on actual circulation. The advertiser gets just what he pays for—no more or less.

REGULAR COMMERCIAL ADVERTISING.

On three, six or twelve months' contracts: One-fifth of one cent per line, on each hundred copies issued, during the insertion. An annual premium of one-half cent of the extra cost of type setting, to this (this type) to the inch. Thus an advertisement containing three inches down the column, and running 13 weeks, on an average circulation of say 900, would cost with one change of matter only $1.20.

TRANSIENT AND LOCAL.—One month or less, at special rates.

Editorial Business Notices—2 cents per line per hundred of circulation.

Special Notices—1 cent per line per hundred of circulation.

Special Notices—Minion type next to advertising columns. Local rates after first insertion.

Accurate record kept of each week's circulation, and charges graded accordingly.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY.

Still in the Lead

Call on James Kearns on the south-east corner of the square, where he keeps constantly on hand the best assortment of fresh meats, bacon, lard, and sausages, ever kept in Kirksville, and by fair and square dealings, expects to still further surpass every butcher in the city. He keeps the best butchers in the city, and challenges the wide west on bologna manufacture. For cleanliness everything is kept in apposite order from the slaughter house to the counter. We play second fiddle to no shops in the west. Our prices: Best steaks from $8 to 10 cents per pound. Beef, mutton, veal, and pork all the same. Boiling beef from 4 to 8 cents.

Farmers having fat stock for sale will get the highest price by calling on us.

JAMES KEARNS.

Southeast corner of the square,

Notice.

Mrs. Swetnam & Goben still occupy their same old stand and are ready to attend calls at all times of the day or night. At night Dr. Swetnam will be found above stairs in the brick immediately South of the Quincy Grocery and Dr. Goben at his residence, east of Ross & Son's lumber yard.

Great Improvements.

McGinnis' new reaper, mower and drapers. These are unquestionably the best. I don't buy anything else without care. By examining them, you'll find no reaper always on hand. Salky line of reapers always on hand, and revolving hay rakes at Link & Blackman's.

A Little.

Halliday Bay, olive in running, a specialty to draw a custom. We called to see about it yesterday, and ascertain that it consisted of everything in the grocery line, including also, Quince and Glassware, cutlery, etc., with a well canned goods etc.

A Business Clean up.

Dr. N. Wilson of this place, owing to the fact that the census may increase demand for his property, made inquiries such that his whole stock is occupied with their manufacture and sale. He will therefore close out his entire stock of general drugs very low per cent or general drugs very low per cent or to a responsible party on time. He has a full line of all kinds of drugs, etc., of the very best quality and can fit out a party desiring a business in this line at the very bottom figures. Call or address him, east side of the square Kirksville, Mo.

Wanted.

A car load of nice fat two year old heifers for which the highest market price will be paid. Apply at the meat market, southeast corner of the square.

(From Thursday's Daily)
HEROES.

The next three days our streets will be thronged men, many of whom as well deserve the title of heroes as any who figure in history. Most of them are plain, unassuming farmers, mechanics, laborers or business men, now modestly discharging the ordinary duties of life as they present themselves, yet some of these men led the charge at Lookout Mountain, or fought with Hooker above the clouds, many lay under the deadly fire in the trenches at Vicksburg, or charged with Sherman at Yazoo Bluffs; Some were at Shiloh on that fatal Sunday when defeat or victory hung trembling in the balance, while others marched with Buell and turned the scale, and laid the foundation of future victories; others were at Gettysburg, and stood like living walls to roll back the hordes of Lee, and snatched victory in the crowning contest of the war from the very jaws of defeat; scores are here who swung with Sherman around Atlanta, and marched with him to the sea; still others who were with Grant in the Wilderness and around Richmond—and witnessed the closing scenes of the bloody drama as the curtain was rung down at Appomattox. These modest, unassuming, quiet looking men have looked death in the face on a hundred battle fields, as unflinchingly as ever did Roman or Greek, and for a nobler cause than man ever did before. "That government for the people, and by the people might not perish."

All honor, then, we say, to the veterans, the soldier-citizens! The men who demonstrated that patriotism and bravery still exist, and that men can dare and do for love of country today as heroically as they did in the days of 1776.

Let the rising generation remember these facts when they see these visitors on our streets. But for them, to-day our glorious republic and boasted freedom would have been a failure—a thing of the past, divided, discordant, contemptible. There are others, comrades of these, who lie underneath the silent pines, whose young lives went up a willing sacrifice. For them let memory shed a tear, "they died for us." Doubtless their comrades here to-day will recall the missing faces of these heroes, and note their vacant places in the ranks. Kirksville honors herself in honoring our visitors. Let every one strive to make their meeting a pleasant success.

BATTLE OF KIRKSVILLE.

How different the scenes to-day from what they were here a little more than eighteen years ago. On August the 6th, 1862, twelve hundred federal troops consisting of portions of the 2d Missouri cavalry (Merrill's) horse, 3d Iowa cavalry, 2d Missouri M. S. M., 4th Missouri M. S. M., and one section of the 3d Indiana battery. After a long and hot pursuit, during which the fedals were fourteen days almost constantly in the saddle, overtook and attacked the rebel General Jo Porter, with a confederate force variously estimated at from 3,000 to 3,500 men.

At Floyd's Creek six miles northeast of this place the advance guard of the fedals came upon the rear of the confederate force who were destroying a bridge, and were fired into losing one man, and from thence to Kirksville there was more or less skirmishing, and when the rear of Porter's force were coming into town, the fedals were massing in front of the present residence of G. T. Spencer to the present residence of J. B. Mitchell. The right wing was then thrown forward, being supported by the section of battery, to a position near the old normal, and extending down into the ravine near the present residence of B. F. Heiny.

Up to this time there were none of the Confederates in sight their position being such as to conceal them from the fedals. A half was then made and volunteers called for to reconnoiter and ascertain the position of the enemy. Lieut. Crowder with nine men responded. The order to advance was given, and we brave little band dashed westward up the street just north of where S. Swigert now lives passing through the advance rebel line, when a terrific fire was opened upon them from all along the line. The reconnoitering party then wheeled to the left, and with the speed of the wind swept up the ravine east of the Baptist church to Missouri street then wheeled to the left and passed east along that street under fire all the time every man racking the federal lines, though several of them were wounded, one or two of them mortally. But the position of the enemy had been ascertained and the batteries opened with grape and canister with deadly effect. The federal troops then advanced steadily and the fight was spirited and bloody, lasting for three hours, the attack having been made just at noon, the rebels fought from houses, from corn patches, from ravines, and everywhere that they could find shelter, so that the fedals had to take the town, house by house, and it was in the capture of the houses that they got most of their prisoners.

The result was a total rout of Porter's force, his loss in killed and those mortally wounded being 81, while the number of those wounded less severely probably reached 150. The federal loss was 9 killed and 21 wounded.

This was the death blow to that army of marauders, and after a few more skirmishes Porter's whole force was compelled to disperse and scatter, Porter was afterwards killed in a duel by a brother officer the difficulty having arisen from a taunt thrown at him regarding the battle here.

Many of the old houses here still bear the marks of the struggle and are pointed out to the curious, and some of the witnesses of that brilliant victory of the boys in blue are yet living here, and to some of them we are indebted for the facts of this history.

He Took Flavoring.

The other day a cousin from one of rural districts, overcome by dust and heat, entered one of our leading drug stores and politely asked the boy behind the counter for a glass of soda water. The boy asked him what flavoring he would have.

"Why, soda water, of course?"
But what flavor do you wish?"
"Why, soda water, you fool!"

"But, you know," returned the boy, "we flavor it with fruit juice, such as pineapple, strawberry, etc."

The countryman scratched his head for about five minutes and then said: "Guess I'll take watermelon. Watermelon is my best food."

Respectfully yours, P. N. GRANGER.

PERSEVERANCE WILL TELL.

Stoughton, Mass., March 10th, 1863.

B. J. KENDALL & CO., GENEVA, in justice to you and myself I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two large spangles with "Kendall's Spavin Cure" from your very large one, don't know how long the spangle had been there, I have owned the fine weighty months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have never had any trouble with the small one, but the large one has been continually pulling at the tendon, and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road again, he began to pull again, and tried twice to break his leg, so I turned him out again, and he never has been able to walk since, and he never has been able to bear weight on his hind legs, and I have never seen any difference in the use of the hind joints since I treated him with Kendall's Spavin Cure.
